Tax Efficient Giving

All gifts to the John Henry Newman Foundation are tax-deductible to the fullest extent permitted under applicable US law. The Foundation can receive contributions and make grants available to University College Dublin.

The John Henry Newman Foundation has been determined by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service to qualify under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code as a tax-exempt charity. As such, to maintain the deductible status of donations, U.S law necessitates that the Foundation Board of Directors retains control and discretion concerning funds donated to, and grants made by, The John Henry Newman Foundation. Although donations to the Foundation must be unrestricted, the Board of Directors will consider specific preferences of donors.

The John Henry Newman Foundation also can accept tax-deductible donations from corporate matching programs.
